Leap Centre move is 'a blow to town'

A DROP-in facility for education, training and skills courses is moving out of the town centre and onto an industrial estate.

The Leap Centre, run by West Suffolk College, is currently housed in Haverhill High Street.

But at the end of the month it will relocate to the MENTA Business Centre, in Hollands Road.

The move, which is due to the lease ending on the current premises, has been branded a blow by Sarah Howard, chairman of ONE Haverhill.

Karen Chapple, ONE Haverhill's youth skills manager, has been working out of the Leap Centre to provide guidance to local young people. She will now be based in Haverhill Arts Centre instead.

Mrs Howard said: "Having Karen smack bang in the middle of the town centre has been a boon for us. It's had a very positive effect on our project because people have been able to just walk in and speak to her."

A main aspect of Haverhill's community budget was to create more opportunities for young people in the town. So far, a number of apprenticeships have been put on offer through a range of local businesses and plans for a youth hub have been put forward.

It is expected that this will open towards the end of this year in the old police station and magistrates' court in Camps Road.

Mrs Howard said: "It's a real shame for the Leap Centre to have to leave the High Street. Having it in the centre has been fantastic.

"You will have to know that Leap is there to access it at the MENTA Centre - I hope it will continue to be successful but what they will lose is the passing trade."

The relocation of the centre has also been criticised by Rose Hubbuck, who teaches art part time through the college.

Mrs Hubbuck said it is "an insult" to move such a reliable service from the centre of the town.

"That's the only college office we have down in the town," she said.

"People can walk in off the street when they feel capable of asking for help. It's an insult to put it up on an industrial estate. It's in the best part of the town on the High Street - but we are not going to be able to walk in there any more. Who is going to go up there?"

Mary Taylor, head of adult education at West Suffolk College, has said that the service the centre offers will not be affected by the move.

She said: "The lease is now up on the building and we have just taken the opportunity to relocate."

"We are already running courses up at MENTA and they work very well."

"We are looking forward to working more with MENTA and with the nearby local businesses."

Elaine Simmons, coordinator at the Haverhill centre, will be stationed at the town's job centre every Friday morning to provide additional support, Mrs Taylor added.

The Leap Centre will move on April 28. Visit leap.ac.uk for more information or email haverhill@westsuffolk.ac.uk.

What is Domestic Violence and How Can we Help?

Domestic violence is any incident of threatening behaviour, violence or abuse (psychological, physical, sexual, financial or emotional) between adults, who are or have been intimate partners or family members, regardless of gender or sexuality.

This definition of domestic violence recognises that on top of physical abuse, psychological and emotional abuse will also be regarded as domestic violence, as will financial abuse, for example bullying a partner by controlling their finances.

If you are a victim of domestic violence, Legal Aid may be available to you to deal with a range of family problems.

We have a number of experienced solicitors who can provide confidential and professional advice in a caring manner. Please contact us for more information.

Why the Nipplettes are doing their bit

DEBRA FOX

A MUM-of-two's decision not to let breast cancer beat her has led to almost £4,000 being raised for charity.

Susannah Johns, 46, was diagnosed with breast cancer in March last year.

After two operations and bouts of both chemotherapy and radiotherapy, Susannah decided it was time to do her bit for others fighting the disease too.

During her treatment, the 46-year-old relied on the support of her family and friends. Together, they formed The Nipplettes - a group of 16 women raising money for Walk the Walk.

So far, they have raised £3,752. Their target is £5,000.

Susannah said: "You just don't think that so many people will just keep giving - everyone is finding it hard with money, but people keep giving all the time."

When diagnosed, Susannah has admitted that she thought she was going to die. After months of shock and upset, Susannah decided to seize the good days between treatments and get on with her life as best she could.

A main coping mechanism for the mum and grandma was writing a blog about how she felt on the worst days of her illness.

"I just wrote down every day how I felt," she said.

"How I felt about losing my hair, how Trevor [Susannah's husband] felt. I was honest about what I was feeling, and I think people liked that.

"Some of the time I was happy but other times I felt like a weak old woman."

As well as collecting sponsorship for the upcoming Moon Walk in London, the women have been holding all sorts of fundraising events including a charity car wash and zumbathon.

Soon, a "Calendar Girls"-style calendar will be available to purchase at Real Bodies Health and Fitness, starring The Nipplettes and shot by David Doughty, of The Gallery.

Susannah's most recent mammogram revealed her to be in the clear - and she's determined to keep fundraising to help the cause as much as she can.

Susannah said: "I had so much support from my family and friends - it made me feel a lot better. But they were going through it too."

The Moon Walk is on May 10. The women will walk 26 miles.

Jury out on trial of former middle school caretaker

A PENSIONER on trial for historic sex offences has said in evidence that the allegations are "entirely untrue".

Robert Bambury, 75, has pleaded not guilty to 17 offences, said to have taken place in the 1970s and 1980s, relating to two young girls.

He is charged with nine offences of indecent assault against one girl, and four of indecent assault, two of gross indecency with a child, one of inciting indecency with a female aged under 16 and one of rape, against a second girl.

The married father-of-five, who was working as a caretaker at Clare Middle School when some of offences are said to have occurred, told Ipswich Crown Court that the allegations made against him were "entirely untrue".

Bambury admitted that he knew both of the girls and was on good terms with them. The 75-year-old said he did have a seven-year affair with one of the alleged victims - but that this began when she was 16.

One of the victims told the court that the offences were committed both in the school and at his home - but Bambury has argued that some of the occasions told to the court were "impossible" because other people were present.

One of the girls also alleged that some of the offences took place under the guise of playing a game, and that Bambury had briefly touched her in a swimming pool on another occasion.

On arrest, Bambury, now of Wright Close, Stowmarket, suggested to police that one of the girls may have been suffering from a nervous breakdown when she made her allegations.

The prosecution has said that neither of the alleged victims knew the other had reported incidents to the police.

The jury was sent to consider its verdict on Tuesday and was still deliberating as the Weekly News went to press.

CASH BOOST: ONE Haverhill hands out more than £9k in grants to community groups at the Arts Centre.

West Suffolk 'becomes more secure with cuts on taxes'

HARD-working residents across West Suffolk will feel the benefit of a new tax cut.

Matthew Hancock, the area's MP, has praised the decision for personal allowance to go up to £10,000.

The most recent cut has helped more than 400 people in West Suffolk be taken out of paying income tax altogether.

In line with the 2014 budget, more residents in the area will become exempt next year. The personal allowance will rise up to £10,500.

Mr Hancock said: "This tax cut is excellent news for hardworking people in West Suffolk. This is the third time this Government has cut income tax, benefitting around 49,054 people here in West Suffolk with 5,378 people now taken out of income tax altogether."

Businesses and employers in the region are too feeling the perks of a new allowance. £2,000 is being taken off the National Insurance Bill of every employer – and this is open to charities and amateur sports clubs too.

The change will make it cheaper and easier for firms to hire new employees, Mr Hancock added.

The changes came into effect on Sunday.

Big cash boost for town groups

HAVERHILL'S history group, running club and tennis club are among those receiving part of a £9,000 grant.

ONE Haverhill has handed out £9,770 to local community groups working to improve the quality of life for residents.

Other recipients of the grants – the fourth round handed out by ONE Haverhill since 2012 – include Haverhill in Bloom, Abbeycroft Leisure and Wednesdays for Women (W4W) – a social group which meets at the Leiston Community Centre every week.

Clair Harvey, chairman of the ONE Haverhill Grants Panel, said: "All of the grants are aligned to the Haverhill community budget priorities in that they directly provide activities for young people or improve the physical environment of the town."

"Our congratulations to all of them."

More than £1,500 was handed out to the town's tennis club to enable the start-up of a sports course for young people. The money is paying for the required equipment, court fees and coaching costs to deliver the sessions.

Robert Jeffs, head coach, has welcomed the money.

He said: "As a result of the grant given by the ONE Haverhill Grant Scheme, Haverhill Tennis Club hope to introduce a new sport to young people, which would give them the opportunity to play socially, get fitter or compete with like-minded people at the tennis club."

W4W is using the £1,850 to set up a toy library for parents and children in the town. The toy library will enable parents to borrow a variety of age-appropriate toys for their children for a small fee to be returned the following week.

Fenella Simmons, group coordinator, said: "Haverhill does not currently have anything like this in place and this will allow W4W to connect with more families, helping to encourage play development for all children in the community."

Some £2,000 was awarded to Haverhill and District Local History Group to pay for the running of the History Room at the Arts Centre, and other facilities for another year while Haverhill in Bloom received £700 for plants to be put in hanging baskets across the town.

Haverhill's inaugural half-marathon and 10k have been given £500. The races will take place on May 11 in aid of St Nicholas Hospice Care, and the grant will assist with running costs.

Suffolk Mind was also awarded £700 to set up a weekly art group in Haverhill for people with mental health issues.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hospital is in the running for top national care honour

WEST Suffolk Hospital is one of five finalists in the running for a national award.

The winner in the quality of care category in the Top Hospital Awards 2014 will be announced on May 13.

It is the fourth year running that West Suffolk Hospital has been shortlisted – and the hospital took home the award in 2011 and 2012.

Music awards on offer

APPLICATION forms for music awards are now available.

The Deena Shypitka Music Awards, organised by Haverhill Sinfonia, will take place in September.

There are three awards available for classical musicians studying on postgraduate music performance courses for the academic year 2014/15.

Applicants can be of any nationality but must be aged 28 or younger.

There is one award for strings, worth £1,000, and an award each for piano and woodwind or brass, worth £500 each.

For details and application forms visit haverhillsinfonia.wordpress.com.

It's a great place to work

HAVEBURY Housing Partnership has been voted as one of the 100 best companies to work for in a list compiled by The Sunday Times.

The housing provider, which has bases in Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds, was ranked 68. More than 100 employees were asked to share their views, and the company policies were examined too. In 2013, Havebury was in 73rd position.

Seal of approval for care home

A NATIONAL care watchdog has praised a care home team for their "high standard" of care.

Place Court Care Home, in Camps Road, Haverhill, has undergone a recent inspection by the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

After interviewing team members, residents and relatives, the CQC ruled that Place Court meets the five national standards of quality and safety, as set out by the Government.

These include treating people with respect and involving them in their care, and providing the care, treatment and support that meets people's needs.

Becky Abbink, manager, said: "I really appreciate the team's hard work and dedication here at Place Court."

"They get to know each resident individually and were praised by the inspectors for their knowledge when it comes to meeting each resident's needs."

"I am pleased that this has been recognised and that the inspectors' report meets the Government and the CQC's standards of care."

Modified car crackdown

TINTED windows, no MoT and low tyre tread were only some of the problems found during a car crackdown.

A total of 17 vehicles were stopped by police officers in Haverhill last week in a bid to target illegally modified cars.

The operation took place between 7pm and 11pm on April 1 in the Aldi car park in Lordscroft Lane.

PCSO Lorna Chapman, from the Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT), said: "Local people often raise their concerns to us about anti-social behaviour; especially regarding the manner certain vehicles are being used."

Three teams of officers identified suitable vehicles, modified by young and inexperienced drivers, and they were then assessed by a further team at the site.

As well as discovering illegal tinted windows, illegal number plates and faulty lighting on some of the vehicles, one had no MOT and two were searched for cannabis.

A further four vehicles were issued with Fixed Penalty Notices for their non-standard exhaust systems, which exceeded the legal sound readings, and three vehicles were prohibited.

PCSO Chapman added: "We held this operation to target those who flout the law, not only as an enforcement measure but also to educate people as well."

"We would like to thank Aldi who kindly allowed us to use their car park for the evening."

Two vehicle examiners attended the site alongside the road safety team from Suffolk County Council. The team also brought along a simulator where drivers could experience the day-to-day challenges of the road, and a moped brake horsepower testing device, designed to detect whether mopeds have been de-restricted to go faster than they should.

Cut Maple Fires & Stoves caters for multi-fuel era

CUT Maple Fires and Stoves are excited by the opportunities presented by moving to their new showroom. They have also been fascinated to see how many people are curious about the building, having remembered it from its beginnings as a Little Chef restaurant.

Cut Maple Fires & Stoves was established in 2008 and has previously been operating from premises just outside Gosfield.

"When we first opened our aim was to provide a quality service at a great price. We also wanted to be able to provide a complete service so we have an in house HETAS registered installer. We feel that this makes the process simpler for the customer but also we are able to provide expert advice from the outset."

ADVERTISING FEATURE

The company also prides itself on its transparent and up-front competitive pricing, and will beat any like-for-like quote without any hidden extras.

Since first opening the company has seen the industry go from strength to strength as fuel prices have steadily increased and more and more people are looking to alternative and economical heat sources such as woodburning stoves. Whilst they do sell gas and electric fires and stoves, the majority of the trade is in woodburning and multi-fuels stoves.

The new showroom gives a great backdrop against which to present the wide range of stoves on display. Products from a variety of manufacturer ers are on offer including British and European made stoves.

"With both traditional and contemporary stoves on display, we hope that we have something to cater for every home and taste. We are also expanding our range of accessories and consumables such as logs and coal."

Among others, the company holds dealerships for Contura, Drugasar (DRU), Dik Geurts, Cleanburn, Esse, Hunter, Dean Forge, Parkray, Dunsley Heat, Mendip, Heta and Keddy.

To celebrate the move to their new showroom Cut Maple Fires & Stoves is offering a discount of £300 on any stove and liner package until the end of April.

Cut Maple Fires & Stoves is situated on the A1017 at New England and is open from 8.30am to 4.30pm Monday to Friday and 10am to 4pm on Saturdays.

CONCERNS: Dr Maureen Baker, chairman of the Royal College of General Practitioners, and Ann Sisson, right.

GP problems highlighted

A PRACTICE manager from a Haverhill surgery has highlighted her concerns about the lack of investment in GP services. Ann Sisson, of Christmas Maltings, visited the Palace of Westminster last week to attend a Royal College of General Practitioner's event. She said: "Local people need to know that our hard-working GPs and practice staff, along with the West Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Group, are committed to delivering quality health services. "However, the year-on-year reduction in national NHS funding for GP practices is having an adverse effect on what we can deliver and achieve." The event took place on April 2.

Call for parking at town's rec

NEWS that Haverhill's recreation ground will be transformed with £70,000 has not been welcomed by all of the town's residents.

Those living in Chantry Road, near to the recreation ground, are complaining about the effect the work will have on their home life.

As previously reported, the green space is to undergo a £70,000 transformation with money from the St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Leisure Asset Review.

It is hoped that the work will be completed for the start of this year's summer holidays.

A resident, who did not want to be named but lives in Chantry Road with his wife, has said that there is "no parking whatsoever" in the area and that it has gotten "worse and worse".

Vehicles line his and the surrounding streets, he said, every day of the week – but even more so when the recreation ground has special events on.

Haverhill's inaugural half-marathon and 10k will be held there on May 11, and the second day of the town's Summer Bash will take place in July.

He said: "The more money they are going to spend on the recreation ground without parking provision is going to make it hell for us here."

"I have lived here for 20 years and it is just getting worse and worse. They say they are going to consult with residents – where are people going to park when they visit?"

A spokeswoman for the borough council confirmed that the plans for the future of the recreation ground are due to go on display at Haverhill Arts Centre tomorrow.

They will be available to view on Friday and Saturday, as well as on April 14, 17 and 19. Feedback from members of the public will be incorporated into the final plans and if parking is discovered to be an issue, she added, it will be looked into.

Did you witness criminal damage?

THREE cars' wing mirrors were broken in a spate of criminal damage at the weekend.

The cars, parked in Cambridge Way, were damaged between 10pm on Friday and 11am on Saturday.

A garden wall in Downs Crescent was also damaged between 10pm on Friday and 6pm on Saturday while the doors and wing panels of a black Ford Focus in Chantry Road were scratched between 7pm on Saturday and 12.30am on Sunday.

Recreation ground needs to be lit

REGARDING the proposed refurbishment of Haverhill recreation ground – great news, it was 20 years ago that the current play park area was constructed, and very good it was.

But these areas really need to be LIT at night, for security reasons, as they are magnets for older kids who go there to drink, and break beer bottles.

My first visit to the newly-constructed current one with my then toddler – now adult – daughter had to be quickly abandoned as there was broken glass everywhere, which I reported.

It would be shortsighted not to light these areas in future, as this is a real danger. It may stop the odd thoughtless late-night dog walker allowing their dogs to use it too.

Lin Williams
via email

Good, but they need to spend more...

I'VE just read the feature in the Haverhill Weekly News re £70K being spent on the town's recreation ground.

Yes, it's a good thing but I would say that the amount being spent is paltry. It's very hard to read the small print on the map of the changes but from what I can make out it would seem a lot if the existing equipment (junk) is brought relocated.

The only additions I could discern were a zip line and landscaping. Anything would improve the current shambles but you only have to see the facilities in Bury St Edmunds to know that Haverhill is getting the borough's short change.

It's about time Haverhill Town Council got their mojo and started to properly fight for the kids of this town.

NEARLY 40 types of ales and eight live bands are on the agenda for an upcoming festival.

The Plough Inn at Hundon is preparing to host its sixth beer festival, taking place over the Easter weekend.

Punters from the pub were asked to nominate their favourite ales for the occasion, and many from local breweries will be on the menu.

These will include brews from Adnams, Maultons and The Colchester Brewery and craft ciders from across the country will also be available.

Entry to see all of the bands, which includes Live Addition, The Larks, from Bury St Edmunds, and The Inturns, is free.

Hundon The Plough Inn

Kate Wood, organiser, said: "We believe the festival offers a unique opportunity for people to sample an eclectic ale list, featuring local, new and national brewers, as well the opportunity to watch eight superb bands, all of a different musical genre."

The festival opens on April 17 and will close on Easter Monday at 11pm. Food will be served throughout.

Children are welcome to attend the festival until 9pm.

Non-runner Debra Fox gets off the sofa & in training for Haverhill's inaugural 10K

I'VE ARRIVED at what I like to call the fourth stage of 10k training ... denial.

The first was ignorance. Back in January when I committed myself to this I thought, "it's ages away, got absolutely nothing to worry about". When training began, this swiftly changed to fear.

The thought of running was keeping me up at night – but not just me, my boyfriend too. He was blamed for letting me think I could do this to start with – he's always the first check point when I have a wild idea.

Anger came next. I was angry at the people of Ely for getting in my way on the street, angry at the doughnut van (my old haunt) for smelling so tempting as I ran by, and angry at myself for getting too tired too quickly.

And now I'm at denial – the race can't possibly be four weeks away, can it?

Armed with a map, I've drawn out a 10k (ish) route around Ely. I'm determined to get around it – in full – at least once before May 11.

Luckily for me, stage five is acceptance. Expect the most positive blog you've ever seen next week.

I'm going running with my friend tonight in Bottisham, so it might help to have a change of scene – and a supportive partner.

That said, she has just completed the Cambridge Half Marathon so I may live to regret it.

Send your tips to debra.fox@cambridge-news.co.uk.

Haverhill runners get set for the London marathon

DEBRA FOX

RUNNERS from across the region will join the thousands running the 2014 London Marathon this weekend.

And as you tune into the coverage, why not try to spot some local athletes doing their bit for a charity close to their heart?

Jayne and Richard Nunn, of Bumpstead Road, Haverhill, are hoping to raise even more than their £1,500 required donation for the Pancreatic Cancer Research Fund.

The husband-and-wife team are running in memory of Richard's mum Jean, who died of the illness in July 2013.

Richard was granted a place by ballot and Jayne was given a charity place.

Sunday's race will be the first ever marathon for Richard – but Jayne is completing her third London Marathon.

Mum-of-two Kelly Mephram, of Billings Close, had only had 12 weeks to get fighting fit in order to be marathon-ready.

The 33-year-old is running for VICTA – a charity supporting blind and partially-sighted children, and their families – and has to raise a minimum of £2,500 with her running partner Nick Rippon-Smith.

Kelly's son Henry, 3, has had glasses since the day before his second birthday and has "very bad eyes for his age", she said, so the charity is "quite close to home".

A hospice neighbour giving her time to St Nicholas Hospice Care will also be taking to the streets of the capital city to raise money.

Jean Newlands, of Great Wrating, started supporting patients in 2012 with small tasks. These can include doing shopping, cutting the grass or simply spending time together over a cup of tea.

Jean, who has already surpassed her target of £2,000, is running in memory of a patient, David Peall, who died of motor neurone disease in February last year.

She is inviting the public along to a coffee morning, to be held tomorrow at Withersfield Village Hall between 10am and noon, to help and add to her total.

Sharne Hunt will also run Sunday's marathon in aid of The Children's Trust – which supports children with brain injuries, multiple disabilities, other complex health needs and their families.

Following the marathon, she is joining forces with friend Chris Claydon to host a charity football match at the New Croft.

As well as raising funds for The Children's Trust, it will go towards Macmillan Cancer Support too.

The game will take place on May 4 from 11am.

EXAMINATION: Members of the Haverhill Tang Soo Do Korean Martial Arts Club.

Success for martial arts club

STUDENTS in a martial arts club are celebrating success.

Members of the Haverhill Tang Soo Do Korean Martial Arts Club have been graded in a recent examination in Cambridgeshire.

The athletes were judged by the 10th Grand Master, Lee

Kang UK.

Craig Phillips, the Haverhill 2nd Dan Instructor, said: "The students have all worked very hard in class to get to the required standard working on forms, self-defence and fighting even before being put forward for their examination in front of the Grand Master and Regional Instructor."

The first lesson at the club is free to try – just attend with a bottle of water and some loose-fitting clothing.

They meet every Tuesday at Leiston Community Centre, Haverhill from 7pm until 9pm.

A mountain of money raised

DEBRA FOX

A BUSINESSMAN has donated more than £1,000 to a maternity hospital.

Bruce Davidson, of Jupiter Close, Haverhill, celebrated his 60th birthday in style last year by climbing Mount Kilimanjaro.

Now he has presented his money to the Rosie Maternity Hospital in Cambridge. Bruce's climb raised £1,726.

Bruce said: "Much-needed funds are always required. Addenbrooke's and the Rosie are NHS hospitals and all the staff are paid by NHS."

"However they do try to give the care that would normally be associated with private hospitals, but without the need for the patient to pay more. This is where the funding comes in."

"My donation is minuscule in comparison to what they – Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust – need to raise each and every year."

The 60-year-old joined a team of climbers for a five-day ascent and one-day descent of the mountain in October 2013.

The gruelling challenge was not Bruce's first time fundraising for the hospital – the 60-year-old ran the London Marathon in 1991 and raised £2,000.

Michelle Gray, head of community fundraising for ACT, said: "We are so thrilled that Bruce chose to raise funds for the Rosie hospital following his epic challenge."

"Following on from the total refurbishment of the hospital last year, the money he raised with support from his family, friends and colleagues will help to ensure that the best possible care continues to be provided to women in facilities that provide a tranquil environment during what is an emotional but very special time.

"Sadly, sometimes things don't go quite as planned during a birth so it is good to know that specialist emergency care is readily available, giving mums and babies the best possible chance of recovery."

Lesson on how to build your own rocket

ALMOST 200 students have worked together to build their own rockets.

The experiment, which was led by by Castle Manor Academy's Science Team, was held during National Science and Engineering Week.

Pupils from Place Farm Primary Academy, Burton

End, Place Farm, Clements and St Felix primary schools joined forces to design, build and fly stomp rockets in and around the main hall at Castle Manor.

The rockets are made from pipe insulation and are put in flight by 'stomping' on a 2-litre drinks bottle. Some students reached distances of 14 metres with their creations.

Gareth Marks, team leader for science, said: "We have had some really exciting sessions with the Year 4 pupils and seen some excellent thinking."

"We had fun and learnt a little about the scientific process too."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Find out what's on

RESIDENTS across West Suffolk will have a new way to find out about upcoming events.

St Edmundsbury and Forest Heath councils are launching a new website over Easter Weekend to keep local people and visitors up to date with activities.

The site, which has been named West Suffolk Diary, will incorporate entertainment listings with dates for family events, historical sessions and workshops across the whole area.

Visit westsuffolddiary.co.uk for more information and to find out what's on and to register for the mailing list.

You can also find out more via Facebook by visiting facebook.com/westsuffolddiary or on Twitter @wsdiary.

Comedian on stage tomorrow

A STAND-up comedian will wow the crowds in Haverhill tomorrow.

Jo Caulfield will perform her Celebration of Anger show – about life's irritations, and why it's okay to be angry – at the Arts Centre tomorrow.

Jo has made appearances on Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow, Mock The Week, Have I Got News For You and Never Mind The Buzzcocks.

She also has her own show on Radio 4 – Jo Caulfield's Speakeasy.

The show will start at 8pm. Tickets are £12.50. Visit haverhillartscentre.co.uk or call 01441 714140.

Ambulance survey extended

A SURVEY into the ambulance service across Suffolk has been extended.

Carried out by Healthwatch Suffolk, the survey will now run until May 1.

FEELING BLUE: Students raising awareness of autism with blue-themed activities.

Wearing blue to raise awareness

PUPILS from Haverhill schools have been raising awareness of autism.

Youngsters attending Churchill School and Samuel Ward Academy donned their favourite blue clothes and ate blue cakes in honour of World Autism Awareness Day, held on April 2.

The pupils also took part in sports activities including a beat-the-goalie shootout – all played with a blue ball.

Churchill School, based on Samuel Ward's campus, welcomed its first intake of pupils in September.

The school welcomes young people aged between 8 and 18 who have language and communication difficulties, high-functioning autism, Asperger's Syndrome, and other specific learning difficulties. The event was organised by Pat Stalker.

Georgina Ellis, head of Churchill School, said: "This was a great opportunity to raise awareness of autism and challenge thinking. The pupils enjoyed the opportunity to work together."

Plans for flats refused

CONTROVERSIAL plans for eight affordable homes and associated parking spaces have been refused after months of debate.

The application, entered by Havebury Housing Partnership, proposed that four one-bedroom and four two-bedroom flats be built on land north of Lower Downs Slade, with garages attached.

Members of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's development control committee previously expressed concerns about the impact the new homes would have on the road's traffic, which was described as "congested" at an earlier meeting.

They carried out a site visit on February 27 following confusion raised about traffic flow on the road and called for an independent assessment.

In a report, the independent engineer said: "I do not consider that the proposal in its current form can justify a refusal on highway grounds."

Suffolk County Council previously entered an objection over vehicular access to the road, but this was withdrawn after alterations were made to the plans – which originally called for six garages. This was later reduced to four.

Councillors made their decision at the committee meeting on April 3.

Scott Bailey, head of development at Havebury Housing Partnership, has said they are "disappointed" with the decision.

He said: "There is a high demand for affordable housing in the area with over 1,500 households on the St Edmundsbury waiting list and over half of those are seeking one-bedroom homes."

"This small development would have provided an opportunity for local people to move into modern homes near the town centre of Haverhill."

Around the Villages

Zafra: Italian diner is an Easter must!

WITH spring now well and truly here and Easter just around the corner, there's never been a better time to visit Zafra Italian restaurant.

From the charming rural setting in the picturesque Essex village of Finchingfield, complete with village green where you can feed the ducks, the family-run eatery has lots of delicious fare on offer.

Chef Frank Tyler's cuisine, always of the highest standards, has garnered great customer reviews over the year and this, along with the friendly welcome that you are guaranteed to receive, makes it a lovely choice for a family meal out.

Specialising in fresh fish, steaks, grills, pizza and pasta, with a strong focus on good Italian dishes, there will be something for everyone to enjoy. Tasty dishes include seafood like lemon sole, swordfish in a Sicilian sauce, sea-bass, tiger prawns or salmon in a fennel and lemon sauce. For pasta fans, the fresh ravioli with gorgonzola and walnut is sure to go down a treat, and traditional spring lamb is just the thing for a lovely Easter lunch.

Your sweet tooth won't be neglected either. Desserts on the menu include the classic tiramisu, Italian-style profiteroles with milk chocolate sauce, a panna cotta with rhubarb, strawberry and elderflower cheesecake or an indulgent treacle tart. And if you want to cool down on a warm spring day, you could even opt for an ice cream cornet.

Once a month Zafra gets ready to party, with its Sunday Jazz lunchtimes. The next event will be on April 27, when singer Antony Myers entertains you with the music of Michael Buble and Frank Sinatra as you enjoy a two course meal, plus glass of wine, all for just £20. Pizza fans should also look out for Wednesday evenings, when all pizzas are half price.

So why not make your reservation now, and take a trip out to this charming Finchingfield restaurant as the evenings get lighter and the days get warmer, and longer.

Zafra is at 5 The Green, Finchingfield, Essex. Visit zafrafinchingfield.co.uk, or telephone (01371) 810501 to reserve a table or book a place at one of the special events.

It's time to lose the label

CLUTCHING a stuffed kangaroo and beaming up at our photographer, Mara Clark is perfect model material. Blonde, scrumptious and brimming with personality, she's completely unfazed as he snaps away. "She's a little poser," laughs her mum, Michelle.

Mara, who turns 2 in June, is used to having her photograph taken – and seen. In fact her picture has been viewed all over the world, thanks to Michelle's hugely popular Facebook campaign.

Called Lose the Label, it's an online page filled with wonderfully engaging images of people with Down's syndrome, all going about their daily life – drawing, swimming, bouncing on a trampoline. Each picture states their name, and the same simple message; at the top of the page is Mara herself, alongside the words: I am Mara. I have Down syndrome. I am not Down syndrome. I am Mara.

The idea came to Michelle after months of everyone from health professionals to people in the street referring to her daughter as 'a

Tired of hearing her daughter Mara referred to as 'a Down's baby', Michelle Clark is on a mission to change the language we use to describe people with Down's syndrome – and her campaign, Lose the Label, is taking the world by storm.

By EMMA HIGGINBOTHAM

Down's baby'. "So with the 'I am' campaign, I wanted to say 'This is my face: yes, I have Down's syndrome, I can't hide. But it doesn't define me, it's not who I am,'" says Michelle. "It means 'I'm a person'."

Originally from Australia, Michelle, who's 44, came to England in her early 20s with her first husband; the marriage broke down just before she turned 40, and she threw herself into her work at a Cambridge tech company.

It was here she met Ben; the couple, who live in Wilburton, celebrated their first wedding anniversary last weekend. "I was part of the team that hired him," she grins. "I wasn't looking for a relationship, but we hit it off and went from there."

"We decided that we wanted to try for children, but I didn't think that we would be able to get pregnant; years and years ago, I tried for eight years, but it wasn't meant to be."

This time it clearly was meant to be. The couple were delighted when Michelle discovered she was expecting but, because of her age, they knew there was a higher chance of complications. "It was something that we discussed before we even tried to get pregnant. But it wasn't an issue for us. We both wanted to go ahead."

That's why, when routine blood tests indicated that their unborn child could have an abnormality, Michelle took it all in her stride.

"My bloods came back as a 1 in 200 chance of Down's syndrome, which isn't high, but we had 1 in 75 chance of Edwards syndrome, which is pretty much terminal; most children don't survive for more than two weeks if they get through the pregnancy."

Michelle was offered amniocentesis – an invasive test that can confirm abnormalities – but because it carries a risk of miscarriage, she declined. "I said no, I want to see the pregnancy through to its natural conclusion. No way am I going to risk a miscarriage."

Mara's entry into the world was rather dramatic; she was born by caesarean when a scan showed that Michelle's blood wasn't flowing properly into the placenta. Seven weeks early, she weighed just 3lb 3oz.

"I didn't get to hold her, but they brought her to me so I could give her a kiss," recalls Michelle. "Everything was so surreal because I didn't think that I would ever be able to get pregnant, and it was a case of 'This is my life now, and it's wonderful'. Tears were just streaming out of my eyes because I had this beautiful little girl."

The following day, doctors told the couple that they suspected Mara might have Down's syndrome; she had certain tell-tale characteristics – flatter facial features and a larger 'sandal gap' between her big and second toes: "But it didn't faze us at all," says Michelle. "The only concerns we had were about her health. She was so premature, and we were worried because she was so tiny. Having Down's syndrome? It was like 'OK, fine, thank you, let's move on'."

The diagnosis was confirmed two days later, "and I cried, but I didn't cry for the reasons that most people do: most people go into shock, but I had no concerns about the Down's syndrome. I cried because the only thought in my head was: 'What is society going to do to her to shape the way she feels about herself? It was my biggest fear.'"

A genetic condition which causes learning difficulties and health issues, around 750 babies are born with Down's syndrome every year in the UK.

Mara had two holes in her heart, both of which have repaired themselves, and her development has been slower: "It's more noticeable now, because she's not walking," says Michelle.

Does it bother her? "No, not at all actually," she shrugs. "It's more people's language that bothers me. It doesn't offend me," she stresses, "but it makes you fully aware of the way that people with Down's syndrome are perceived. They're not perceived as 'normal', but they are! Mara has the ability to learn everything the next person does, it may just take her a little longer."

The problem, she says, is that our knowledge – and language – is inherited from a time when very little was known about people with the condition.

Do people ever stare? Michelle smiles. "I'll give you an example – a day I felt we didn't fit in the world at all."

"It was the day we were going to buy her first pair of shoes. We had an orthotics appointment for her ankles, and the orthotics guy called her 'a Down's child'. So that was the first thing. Then we were in John Lewis, and a lady came up to us; she was being so nice, and chatting with Mara, but then she turned to me and said 'Oh, she hasn't got it bad, has she?'

"For some reason people seem to think there's a severity level, but with Down's syndrome you either have it or you don't. I told her 'Yes, she has Down's syndrome; yes, she's very pretty'. It did offend me, I suppose, but I was trying not to let her know – but she physically ran away from us. She really tried, and I really do appreciate that, but then it all went wrong."

"After that there were two women – one my age, and one that would've been her mother – walking around. The one my age looked at Mara in the pram, gave her this disgusted look, and then she turned to me and gave me the same disgusted look. Then she stopped her mother, pointed at Mara and and Mara got the same disgusted look from that woman."

"I felt so deflated. They're the sorts of people I don't want to affect Mara. I don't want her ever, ever to have to deal with that sort of thing."

"I'm her mother, so I'll always see beauty in her and I'll always be biased, but what do people see when they see a child with Down's syndrome? Are their features so disgusting that they react this way?"

"I was really upset. It was like what am I going to do? How can I protect her from society? I just can't. And it all came flooding back, that this is my life struggle. I can't protect her, but what I can do is try to educate society."

Michelle set up the Facebook page last October: "I had the 'I am' campaign message in my head for some time. It was simple but it seemed quite powerful."

"There are so many battles you can fight, but I chose language because I think that while people still define others by their diagnosis, there will never, ever be full inclusion."

The response has been incredible. In just six months, the page has achieved more than 4,750 'likes', and people from every corner of the globe have been sending in their photographs. "It's gone quite viral, to be honest; obviously it's an issue around the world," says Michelle.

"I get floods of messages: thank yous, stories about what they've had to face that day, or reactions to their children. They're so sick of people calling them 'a Down's child' and they're right to be! "But how do you tell somebody 'please don't say it that way, say it this way', without them getting on the defensive? I think that Lose the Label has found a way to do that."

Michelle invites people to submit snapshots of their friends and family in everyday situations, then adds the words and Lose the Label logo herself. She chose 'Down syndrome' rather than 'Down's syndrome' because that's how it's referred to in Australia and the USA: "I always thought that it would go global, so what's an 'apostrophe s' among friends?" she smiles.

And what are her hopes for Mara's future? "I guess I want what every parent wants – for her to live a happy and independent life where she can be safe, accomplish what she wants to, be a good person and be herself."

"But no matter how great our efforts to prepare her for the world, no matter how much we tell her we're incredibly fortunate to have such a cheeky, strong-willed and delightful little girl, it's society that will influence the way

Mara feels about herself, and this is why Lose the Label exists. It's here for everyone to see each person with Down's syndrome as the unique individual they are."

There's a new photo of Mara on the page now, this time with Michelle holding her: "The only reason I chose that photo – because I don't like me in it! – is that Mara is so engaging," says Michelle, giving her little girl a squeeze. "She's just draws you in and says 'Oi! I'm Mara, I'm not this diagnosis! Yes, I have it, but it's no big deal!'"

READ THE STORY:
Robert Linsdell.

Great War is brought to life in novel

A LINTON resident has just published his first novel after four and a half years of writing.

Robert Linsdell, 38, made time around his full-time job and parenting to write Close of Play.

The novel, which is available as an e-book, tells the story of friendship between two men growing up in the early 20th century and how their lives change when they sign up to fight in the First World War.

Mr Linsdell, who is used to writing poetry and shorter pieces, said that he had always started writing books but had never finished them.

He said: "But with this story I was so interested in the topic so it was easier to sustain it."

"It is a success in itself to have completed it."

How to get more fruit and veg

AFTER reports that five pieces of fruit and veg a day don't make the grade, a Suffolk organisation has released tips on how to incorporate more into your diet.

Live Well Suffolk has revealed seven easy ways to get more of the good stuff after new research found eating seven pieces of fruit or vegetables can reduce the risk of premature death by more than 40 per cent.

Heather Osborn, dietitian for Live Well Suffolk, has shown some of the easy ways to make sure you get more.

She said: "We want to remind people that eating plenty of fruit and veg every day doesn't have to be expensive and we hope that these tips will help encourage people to make healthier food choices."

The tips are:

- Buy loose fruit and vegetables rather than pre-packaged as they are often cheaper.
- Visit budget supermarkets where there may be offers on fruit and veg.
- Choose fruit and veg in season as they will be more affordable.
- Shop at a local market or farmers' markets for fruit and vegetables.
- Replace a mid-morning snack with a piece of fruit.

- Re-use leftover vegetables in soups, stews or casseroles.
- Grow your own fruit and vegetables.

Heather added: "Although the research has found that eating seven to 10 portions of fruit and vegetables has the most health benefits, people are still struggling to meet the current recommendation of five a day."

"But the study did find that there are health benefits from every portion of fruit and vegetables that you eat and eating just one to three portions on a daily basis is much better than not eating any at all."

Band on the rise after chart success

A PREVIOUSLY unsigned band has been snapped up by a management company after spending 20 weeks in a radio chart.

Flux 32, from Haverhill, completed the full run in the Cambridge105 unsigned chart - including some time in the number one spot.

Following their success they have been signed to Off The Chart Promotions and are looking to spread their fanbase across the region.

Bassist Dave Brittain said: "We would just like to thank all our likers on Facebook, Twitter followers and all our friends and family for their continued support, and a special thanks to Dave Hammond who gave us our first radio airplay and has been a huge supporter of Flux."

"Working together with Off The Chart we can really build on our current success and look forward to lots of gigs and lots more music to come."

Tomorrow, Flux 32 will play at The Junction in Cambridge, headlining the Fiver night.

For more information and for tickets, which cost £5, visit facebook.com/flux32. You can also go to flux32.com.

The band also have plans to play Stortfest in Bishop's Stortford, Strawberry Fair in Cambridge and NMG night at The Portland Arms, also in Cambridge.

Former ARU student scoops journalism award

AN ASPIRING journalist has used his experience of working in a Cambridge supermarket to scoop a prestigious writing award.

Former Anglia Ruskin University (ARU) student Brendan Sharp won the Wyn Harness Prize for young journalists, an annual award presented by The Independent newspaper, for a story about how self-service checkout machines can alienate shoppers based on his time spent as a self service assistant in Cambridge.

The 22-year-old, who is originally from Clare, near Haverhill, said: "To win such a prestigious prize is amazing and it was a fabulous experience going to The Independent's headquarters and meeting the editor."

"To see my article in print in a national newspaper is what every aspiring journalist dreams of, and I hope that this can act as a springboard for my future career."

Brendan's article was praised for clarity of argument and aptness of subject matter by The Independent's editor Amol Rajan.

Mr Rajan said: "The threat to manual workers from automation is a challenge facing all advanced societies. He addresses it in a compassionate and cogent way, and looks destined for a long and glorious career in journalism."

Brendan, who graduated from ARU with a degree in English Literature in 2012, was awarded with a cheque for £1,000 and two weeks of work experience at The Independent.

Rowlie Wymer, Professor of English at Anglia Ruskin and Brendan's tutor, added: "I'm delighted for Brendan. He applied himself very well to the course and his writing got better and better during his time at Anglia Ruskin."

SC00P: Former Anglia Ruskin University student Brendan Sharp receives the Wyn Harness Prize for young journalists from Amol Rajan, editor of The Independent.

101 drivers are caught not wearing seatbelts

POLICE targeting drivers not wearing their seatbelts have snared 101 people in Norfolk and Suffolk.

NATALIE ROBINSON

During a week long campaign held between March 10 and March 16, police officers conducted checks on motorists and passengers through the counties as part of the Europe-wide TISPOL campaign.

Each driver caught with no seatbelt received a fixed penalty notice of £100 or were offered a course.

Four of the 101 offences related to children not wearing seatbelts, a responsibility of the person driving the car.

Chief Inspector Chris Spinks, head of the roads policing unit, said: "I'm disappointed that over 100 people have ignored the importance of wearing a seatbelt."

"As previous fatal road traffic collisions have shown, failing to wear a seatbelt can have tragic consequences.

"It is particularly saddening that four adults thought nothing of carrying a child in their vehicle without ensuring they were strapped in."

"Seatbelts can be a major factor in reducing the likelihood of being killed or seriously injured and should not be underestimated."

"It is an effortless task that should be part of a routine before starting up a vehicle and quite simply can mean the difference between life and death."

Brothers get into flooring business

A FAMILY business for all flooring needs has opened in Haverhill.

B.B Flooring, run by Brett and Brad Butler, is in Station Road.

The pair offer good-quality flooring for low prices including carpet, vinyl tiles and laminate.

Brett, a trained floor fitter, started his own business last year with a stall on the market. After celebrating success he and Brad joined forces to open a shop to deal with the demand.

In setting up, B.B has had a lot of support from fellow businesses in town include Queen Street Computers, Tyson Floors, and Morris Armitage.

The premises is owned by Specialized Print and holds Suffolk Bronze Carbon Charter for energy efficiency, without changing the integrity of the building.

DEBRA FOX

B.B also offers a 5 per cent discount to pensioners every Wednesday. For more information visit the shop in Station Road or call 01440 761209.

B.B Flooring still has a stall on Haverhill market every Saturday, from 8am until 3.30pm. Visitors to the market can book up a measuring session at the stall, and remnants are available for purchase.

The shop is open from Monday-Friday 9am until 5pm and 9am until 4pm on Saturdays.

GUIDEThe only

EssexGOOD CLEAN FUN:
*The DishwashersTHE suds are flying in playwright Morris Panych's ode to potwashers at Cambridge Arts Theatre, writes Ella Walker.

Starring '70s heartthrob David Essex, now 66, as philosophising old-timer Dressler, black comedy The Dishwashers sees Emmett, a high-flying city boy, crashing financially and winding up scrubbing crockery at a fancy restaurant he used to eat at. Splashing the Fairy Liquid alongside him, other than Dressler, is gloomy Moss, who has reached the end of the line in the kitchen; together the trio brave a never-ending onslaught of dirty dishes and a heavy dose of despair.

David said of the play: "It touches on lots of subjects. It's very thought-provoking and when I read it, I just thought it was well written and witty, and the part of Dressler is very interesting. He's an ex-prisoner, he's obviously educated himself and he has that undercurrent of violence about him which I think is interesting to play.

"People seem to really enjoy it. I think things come back to you after you've seen it, it works on lots of different levels ... duty and discipline; it's in that Pinter/Beckett style.

"It's been challenging for the three of us because it's very obtuse, it's not linear, this jumps all over the place, but that in itself makes it interesting, I think."

Renowned as a heartthrob ("It's never sat comfortably with me"), David has done 'jumped around' throughout his career, which spans four decades.

"I'm always pleased because I do seem to be able to work in so many different mediums. I just finished a film called Traveller and I did the soundtrack for that as well; there's another film I just finished called Guvvnors, out in July, and of course the theatre, and then I'm doing an arena rock tour in June, so for me it's great.

"I just seem to float from one medium to another. It's a perfect position as far as I'm concerned."

How to do HipHop

EVER fancied a go at HipHop and breakdancing? Now's your chance. Urban arts group SIN Cru is running its 15th workshop led six-day festival, SOHHA (SInstitute of Hip Hop Arts) with Cambridge City Council over the Easter break.

Aimed at energy pumped youngsters, but open to HipHop minded adults too, during the festival even 0-6-year-olds won't get left out, tiny weeny BBoys can leap around at a HipHop tots session.

Total beginners can get a full introduction to SIN Cru's creativity with foundation classes in BBoy basics, while SIN Cru regulars and established BBoys can sign up to a weeklong BBoy masterclass, led by a series of experts.

Hang out with Mon Mounir to get some French inspiration, release your inner kung fu cartoon character, bump up your 'power moves' and hone your rhythm.

Workshop-wise you can chill out with some yoga, put your vocal chords to good use with beatboxing, learn to graffiti (and choose a tag), try out your MCing and DJ skills, and get the diabolo out for some circus tricks.

Plus, see how you do in a HipHop quiz and – oh brave ones – give HipHop karaoke a go. There'll also be a graffiti art exhibition and an end-of-week party (Friday) where you can share and show off the skill(z) you've learned throughout the week, followed by the Know the Ledge Community Graffiti Jam on Saturday, featuring live graff art and showcase acts.

■ SInstitute of Hip Hop Arts (SOHHA), Cambridge Combat & Fitness Centre, Histon Road, until Saturday, April 12 at various times. Tickets £10-£38 from projects@sincru.co.uk

■ Scamp Theatre and Watford Palace Theatre bring PIRATE GRAN, based on the books by Geraldine Durrant and Rose Forshall to us today at 2pm. It's brim-full of fun for seafaring children aged three-plus and their shipmates of all ages. Meet Gran. She bakes. She knits. You'd never guess she was a Pirate! Pirating isn't the life for everyone, but Gran says if you don't mind sleeping in a hammock and being called Scary Mary, then it's a career more girls should think about. With a pet crocodile under her bed, a wicked sense of humour and a whole raft of adventures under her belt – time with Gran is never dull! Gran isn't scared of anything. Not even monsters. And then there's Grandpa ... The show lasts for one hour.

■ Join JO CAULFIELD for A CELEBRATION OF ANGER tomorrow at 8pm. Jo's always wondered why anger is seen as such a bad thing. When life presents such irritations as vacuous celebrities, endless TV quiz shows, emotionally 'challenged' men and drunken girlfriends who always pick the wrong partner, surely having a good rant – and a good laugh – is the only sensible reaction? Enjoy your anger. Star of Radio 4's hugely popular Jo Caulfield's Speakeasy, and seen on Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow, Mock The Week, Have I Got News For You, Never Mind The Buzzcocks and The Apprentice: You're Fired, Jo promises a fantastic night out for everyone. No matter how angry you might be.

■ To the delight of fans, ONLY ONE DIRECTION, the UK's number 1 One Direction tribute band, is coming to Haverhill Arts Centre as part of their MIDNIGHT MEMORIES TOUR on Sunday 13 April at 2pm and 7pm. Capturing the charisma, energy and enthusiasm of the famous five, this show features songs from all three of One Direction's smash hit albums, with giveaways, audience participation and a meet-and-greet with the boys.

■ Long Nose Puppets bring ARTHUR'S DREAMBOAT, based on the book by Polly Dunbar, to us on Wednesday 16 April at 11am and 2pm. One night Arthur has an amazing dream about a beautiful pink and green boat with a stripy mast. He can't wait to tell everyone about it but no one (not even his dog!) is interested. In fact, they don't even notice that this very same boat is growing on his head, getting larger and larger by the minute! Soon, Arthur is bouncing along the waves in his very own dream boat. Maybe now his family will listen to him! Brought to you by the makers of Shoe Baby and Penguin, with music by Tom Gray of the Mercury Award winning band Gomez.

■ The Arts Centre will be closed on Good Friday and Easter Monday; we'll be back and ready for action on Tuesday 22 April. We just need the sun to shine!

film of the week

CALVARY (15, 101 mins)

THE luck of the Irish runs out for one unsuspecting priest in John Michael McDonagh's wicked black comedy that contrives a murder mystery before the heinous crime has been committed.

In a riveting opening sequence worthy of Alfred Hitchcock, Father James Lavelle (Brendan Gleeson) tends to his flock in a close-knit Sligo community riddled with dark secrets.

Sitting quietly in the confession booth, the holy man is stunned when an anonymous male parishioner confides, "I was raped by a priest when I was seven years old, every other day for five years."

Father James listens intently as the man calmly reveals that his abuser was never punished and he intends to exact revenge by spilling more blood.

"There's no point in killing a bad priest," the confessor continues. "I'm going to kill you because you're innocent."

Thus, Father James is instructed to put his affairs in order before his date with destiny on the local beach.

"Killing a priest on a Sunday – that'll be a good one," concludes the parishioner before he leaves the booth.

With the clock ticking, the holy man searches for glimmers of hope in the eyes of his wayward flock including the scheming laird (Dylan Moran), the butcher (Chris O'Dowd) whose adulterous wife (Orla O'Rourke) is engaged in a violent tryst with a garage mechanic (Isaac De Bankole) and his own daughter (Kelly Reilly).

Everyone has something to hide, it seems, and McDonagh's richly detailed script suggests that any of the men in town, including the doctor (Aiden Gillen) and an ailing American writer (M Emmet Walsh), might be Father James's intended killer.

Indeed, the only suspects the weather-beaten priest is willing to discount are militant Islamists.

"I don't think Sligo is high on the Al-Qaeda agenda," he quips to one of the locals.

Sunday draws closer, forcing

Father James to consider all of the wrongs he has committed and their potential repercussions.

Building on incendiary themes in his 2011 directorial debut The Guard, McDonagh delivers an accomplished portrait of an insular world marinating in depravity and regret.

He populates the wind-swept locations with a memorable band of misfits and degenerates.

Gleeson delivers a towering performance as a vessel of God, who may pay the ultimate price for another man's sins.

The tension cranks up, reaching a crescendo as Father James takes the lonely walk down to the beach to discover his destiny. We silently plead him to stop, to turn around and flee to safety, but McDonagh has never offered his characters an easy way out.

Get kids into the garden

IF the weather is fine this Easter, (and it's beginning to look like it might be), many parents will be wanting to sort out their gardens – and hopefully encouraging their children to give them a hand along the way.

Certainly, with National Gardening Week (April 14-20) on its way too – a scheme launched three years ago by the RHS to celebrate gardening with nationwide events – there really is no excuse not to get your little ones outdoors.

Andrea Fowler, horticultural educator at RHS Garden Wisley, points out that attracting wildlife, seed-sowing and vegetable-growing are all sources of inspiration to young gardeners.

"Spring is definitely here so we can be seed-sowing and planting in earnest. If you just want to get the children outside do an Easter egg hunt in the garden – there are also Easter holiday activities at all four RHS gardens over the holidays.

"If you're sowing seeds with children, sow something that's going to spark their imagination. Plant flower seeds which children will be excited about, like calendula – there's a calendula called 'Porcupine' which is an extra spiky pot marigold. There's also cornflower 'Blue Boy' and sunflowers, which everyone loves.

"Nasturtiums are fantastic and make great container plants so you don't need to have a huge garden, you can just grow them in a window box. Herbs are also great.

"If you're growing veg with children, have a go with 'Pink Fir Apple' potatoes (a maincrop variety with knobbly pink skinned tubers of butter yellow, waxy flesh) or purple potatoes, purple beans and yellow tomatoes, which will get them interested."

Attracting wildlife into the garden will also engage the children, so help them build a mini-beast hotel (although autumn can be a better time to do this when wildlife is looking to hibernate).

A simple bug hotel can be made from a collection of hollow stems packed into a plastic bottle with the end cut off. Several hotels could be placed in different positions such as on the ground among vegetation, fixed on top of a post,

by Hannah Stephenson

next to a wall, half way up a hedge, in a tree, under a bird table. Grander bug hotels can be made by piling up a variety of materials into a tower, or making a wooden frame with a series of compartments and packing these with different fillings.

Remember rotting wood is both a home and source of food for various beetle grubs and a vast army of other mini-beasts, which in turn make a tasty snack for birds, hedgehogs and frogs, so leave an area of the garden wild and build a log pile with the children.

"Children also love worms. If you are working in the garden let them dig with a trowel and they'll love it. But don't let them chop the worms in half."

You could also help your children make a bird cake, using fat, good quality wild birdseed, raisins, peanuts and grated cheese. Just leave the fat in a warm place to soften, put the other ingredients into a bowl, chop the fat into small pieces and add to the mixture, mixing it together using fingers or a spoon. Put the mixture into a yoghurt pot to hang from your bird table or roll into balls to place on it.

"We need to get the next generation inspired by gardening," Fowler says.

'Whisper diesel' at Murketts

MURKETTS Vauxhall is inviting locals to keep an ear out for Vauxhall's new generation 1.6-litre CDTi engine... but they might not hear it!

Dubbed the 'Whisper Diesel', this super-smooth powertrain from the manufacturer is best-in-class in noise and vibration generation and offers outstanding fuel economy.

The 1.6 CDTi is also Vauxhall's cleanest ever mid-size diesel and is now available to order from the retailer, with sites in Cambridge and Huntingdon, in the top-selling Astra.

Previously only available on the Zafira Tourer and the Meriva models, the new 1.6 CDTi engine is now able to enhance the Astra's appeal in the latest wave of refinements to Vauxhall's significantly refreshed powertrain line-up.

Peter Milner, general sales manager at Murketts Vauxhall, comments:

"The addition of this new engine to the Vauxhall Astra line up is, unlike the engine itself, not something we wish to keep quiet!

"Already Euro 6-compliant, it is both muted and refined thanks to an efficient combustion process with multiple injection, re-designed components and the use of acoustic covers. You could say that one thing customers will be able to hear is the difference!"

Available in 110PS and 136P power outputs, the highly acclaimed new engine is clean and powerful too, and is offered in both the Astra hatchback and Sports Tourer body styles, as well as in Meriva and Zafira Tourer models. The 110PS version achieves a competitive 76.3mpg combined with a low CO2 emission of just 97g/km, and 72.4mpg combined and 104g/km in 136PS variant.

On-the-road prices for the Astra 5-door hatchback with the 1.6CDTi 16v engine start at £17,735 for the 110PS and £18,330 for the 136PS. Meanwhile the Astra Sports Tourer with the 1.6CDTi 16v engine starts at £18,755 for the 110PS and £19,350 for the 136PS.

All new Vauxhall models offer peace of mind long after their new purchase too, thanks to the manufacturer's industry-leading Lifetime Warranty. Available to the first owner of all new Vauxhall cars, the warranty is valid for the lifetime of the vehicle up to a maximum of 100,000 miles.

The Vauxhall Astra with the 1.6 CDTi is available to order now from Murketts Vauxhall, with first deliveries expected from April 2014. The engine can also be ordered now on the Zafira Tourer and Meriva models.

STUNNING: Evocative new design for Cambridge-based Lister Motor Company's website

New website for revitalised Lister

THE Lister Motor Company is proud to announce the unveiling of its brand new website. The site has been launched today to celebrate the car manufacturer's 60th anniversary, and to coincide with the first Lister Jaguar 'Knobbly' to roll off the production line in over 20 years.

The new site can be found at the existing URL lister-cars.com and is sure to get pulses racing with its well balanced mix of unique design and traditional values. Focus is on the company's roots in Cambridge, while incorporating branding from the original 1950s Lister racing company, as well as the more recent Lister Storm era of the 80s, 90s and noughties.

Racing and motoring enthusiasts are given access to a plethora of mouth-watering imagery, as well as insight in to the history of the company and latest news. One of the main elements of the site describes the Lister 'Knobbly' in tremendous detail, with Lister building 10 of these astoundingly beautiful cars in the coming months. Those interested in buying a 'Knobbly' can request delivery of the official brochure directly through the homepage.

Lawrence Whittaker, CEO of the Lister Motor Company, said: "I just love how the site has captured everything that the Lister brand represents. We have here a website that matches the authenticity, history and prestige of Lister perfectly. 2014 is a big year for us as we celebrate our 60th anniversary and complete the first 'Knobbly', and 2015 will be even bigger as it will be 125 years since Lister first graced British manufacturing. It is a credit to the company to have been a constant for so long, and we are immensely proud to be part of something so special."

Time to give your car a bit of carjazzle!?

CAJAZZELING is the latest trend to hit our shores.

Following the vajazzelling craze made famous by the cast of TOWIE, it seems that the fashion statement is inspiring car owners up and down the country.

Approvedgarages.co.uk has warned that there is a serious and worrying shortage of stick-on gems in the UK due to the high demand of its customers requesting cajazzelling services.

The network estimates it could see up to 600 owners booking the personalised cars decorating service in the next 24 hours.

Bespoke designs for your car range from flowers and hearts or more hard core tattoo styles and you can even have your name or business emblazoned across the front in brightly coloured crystals. And to complete the girly look eyelashes can be added to headlights with crystal eyeliner.

For more details go to approvedgarages.co.uk.

Kerr and Sanders hit the heights at Drive-In GARRY Kerr and Len Sanders were the winners of the Captains' Drive-In at Haverhill Golf Club.

The event was hosted by club captain Bob Spittle and his wife and ladies' captain Theresa, with the format being fourball betterball off full handicap.

Kerr and Sanders won with 49 points, one clear of Eileen Kiddy. Graham Hepworth and Michael Bennett were third with 47.

Simon Cousins and Russell Gritty made the best score on the front nine with 24, and Don Simpson and Michael Goldsmith triumphed on the back nine with 23.

Dave Ross, Andy Fish and Sheila Price were nearest the pin winners, and Peter Bowers was closest to guessing captain's drive distance.

The total raised on the day was £793, and the charity for 2014 was chosen as St Nicholas Hospice Care. A Charity Golf Day is being organised for Saturday, June 14.

Wayne Smith triumphed in the Men's IFF Challenge Final, which was for the winners throughout the 2013/14 season. He scored 36 points, but it was his better back nine of 18 that saw him beat Mick Warren on countback. Michael Goldsmith was third on countback with 34.

Haverhill hosted the final meeting of the Suffolk Winter Alliance, with Stowmarket's Sam Forgan and Newton Green's Tim Cooper sharing the professional prize with 72, one clear of Haverhill head professional Paul Wilby.

He joined forces with Colin Bradnam to take the fourball betterball stableford and Millennium Cup with 42 points, beating Forgan and Newton Green's Peter Webb on countback. Howard Foster and Roger Gardiner were third with 41.

Spittle carded a superb nett 65 to scoop the overall win in the men's midweek medal.

His score also won Division One, with Gordon Price second on 67 and Paul Bartlett third with 68.

Neville Felton triumphed in Division Two with 67, four ahead of Ross Curl, who pipped Roger Hartley to second on countback. In Division Three, Mark Wells won with nett 68. Stuart Haworth was second on countback from Craig Fleming after both shot 70.

In the ladies' midweek medal, Judy Farren was the overall winner with nett 74. Sally Price was second on countback from Pat Wellstead.

Lynn Fish took the Saturday Medal with 70, six ahead of Pauline Calmet. Jackie Condon was third with 82.

Bradley and Weaver inspire Borough win

HAVERHILL Borough cruised to a 5-1 win at home to March Town United in the Thurlow Nunn League, First Division on Wednesday night.

Ben Bradley scored twice in the first 10 minutes to give Borough a 2-0 lead but the visitors reduced the deficit midway through the half with a superb strike from 40 yards.

Ryan Weaver restored the hosts' two-goal lead when he scored in the 43rd minute after a mistake by the March keeper. And Lee Salmon's goal in first-half stoppage time made it 4-1 at the interval.

A second goal from Weaver on the hour mark completed a comfortable win.

Last Saturday, Borough were comfortable 3-0 winners at Downham.

They took the lead after 13 minutes through Luke Strutton and the same player scored again 10 minutes later.

Further chances fell to Weaver and Gavin Taylor but it remained 2-0 at half time.

Then in the 47th minute, Aaron Forshaw whipped in a dangerous cross which Downham's Nathan Cross could only deflect into his own net.

In the Premier Division, Haverhill Rovers were punished for not taking their chances in the first half as they lost 3-0 at home to Diss last Saturday. Andrew Ofosu, Marcus Hunt and Dan Cornwell all spurned fantastic opportunities to open the scoring, with the latter two having shots cleared off the line.

The visitors went in front after 10 minutes and then netted again 15 minutes later.

Haverhill never really looked like finding the back of the net after that and a third goal 20 minutes from time sealed their fate.

"It was very frustrating," said Rovers boss Dean Greygoose.

"In the last few weeks we've been excellent but we didn't play anything like we have done. Diss deserved to win it and wanted it more and they took their chances. That's football."

Double joy for Barker

BEN Barker continued his winning start to the 2014 season by dominating the opening round of the Porsche Carrera Cup GB at Brands Hatch.

The Hundo-based driver was making a guest appearance in the championship and debuted the 991 GT3 Cup model in fine style, winning both races by comfortable margins.

In doing so, he seized the chance to warm up for his Porsche Mobil Supercup campaign and boosted confidence that was already high after a class win at February's Bathurst 12 Hours.

Representing Parr Motorsport, Barker qualified second for race one, lining up alongside Michael Meadows.

Barker made a perfect start and took the lead going into Paddock Hill Bend. He made the most of his car's performance to maintain a lead of around two seconds throughout the 34-lap race.

He started the second race on the front row and again got the better of Meadows at Paddock Hill Bend.

He built up his lead and won by a comfortable margin.

"This was almost the perfect race weekend," added Barker.

"Only taking pole position as well as the two wins could have been better."

Aztecs clinch cup triumph

CALLUM Haynes hit two goals to help Aztecs Juniors under-15s lift the Josh Bysouth Remembrance Cup with a 3-2 win over Spartak 78 under-15s.

The match was held in memory of former Spartak player Josh who was killed in a car crash in 2011 along with his grandfather, Michael Kidd.

Spartak took the lead thanks to a Charlie Cotier effort, but Haynes' double put Aztecs on top.

Luke Wood extended the lead and Aiden Byrne pulled one back for Spartak late on.

The trophy remains on display in the Herbert's Farm pavilion, carrying Aztecs colours of green and black until it is contested again next season.

Ethan Murphy got both in West Watting's 2-2 draw with Royston Town in Cambridge & District Colts League 14A.

Harrison Butt got Aztecs White's goal in their 1-1 draw with Milton in Cambridgeshire Mini Soccer League 10C.

Jack Lisher hit a brace as West Watting lost 6-2 to Isleham United White in BM Kempton 9v9 Youth League 12A.
